The Evening World Prints Associated Press News.

It was not a markedly Anarchistic May Day abroad after all.

The Baroness BLANC has discovered something which a private detective can catch. That is another private detective.

Congressmen who can't let the races alone long enough to attend to pressing public business deserve to be left at the post in their next race for public honors.

It was a windy Sunday, but somehow the side doors were working again with almost normal readiness, and no man need have missed an opportunity to wash the dust down his throat.

LAW-AVOIDING LABOR.

New York has good reason to be proud of her laboring population. Orderly, law-abiding and patriotic, the working-men of the city are a credit to the community and its best safeguard against communistic teachings and disturbances.

The May demonstration of the labor organizations opened last Saturday evening with a parade, a mass-meeting and speech-making at Union Square. The proceedings were free from disorder, and while some of the addresses had in them a spirit of Socialism they were command-the sentiment of all honest American labor was voiced in those words.

POLICEMAN NICHOL, from the Charles street station set the standard of duty high before the eyes of his fellows yesterday when he gave up his own life in the act of saving others at the West Thirteenth street church fire.

Here is an example for Europe.

"STAND AND DELIVER" AGAIN.

The eagle barons have not left the public long in doubt as to the real object of their "combine." In olden times, when their coffers needed replenishing, the feudal barons were accustomed to lead their robber retainers out on the road to plunder travellers. Their successors, the coal barons, desirous of adding to their wealth, hold their weapons at the throats of the people and demand of them an increased price for one of the most indispensable necessities of life. The cost of coal to the consumer is already raised and the tendency is still upward.

It is outrageous that coal, sugar and other articles needed every day by the people for use in their families should be subject to the greed of these grasping combinations. The plan that the union of capital cheapens production and transportation is not sound and fraudulent. The people get no advantage from it, in all events, and if the price of oil, or sugar, or any other article subject to the control of a Trust or Combine, is temporarily cheapened, the consumer is at the mercy of the monolithists and is certain to be victimized in the end.

Surely there ought to be some means of reaching and overthrowing these trade conspiracies, and that Governor or legislator who will aid in the work will win golden opinions from all sorts of men.

ANOTHER RICHMOND IN THE FIELD.

Some anti-Harrison Republicans are quietly working to bring forward ex-Speaker Tom Reed for the Presidential nomination. Tom Platt is alleged to be at the bottom of the movement.

The natural supposition would be that the original man from Maine must be absolutely a "lost cause" before a "counterfeit presentation" could be seriously thought of as the Republican nominee. But it is remembered that the sincerity of the New York Republican leader's devotion to Secretary Blaine has been seriously doubted, and there are those who do not hesitate to assert that the Reed boom is designed to be as damaging to a second attempt as to a second term.

The ex-speaker is a bold and brainy man, whose chief recommendations to the favor of his party are extreme partisanship and cool audacity. If he could only be allowed to count the absences from the polls as present and voting on his side, he might have a brilliant prospect of success.

TAR AND FEATHERS AS A PROFESSION.

A decision recently arrived at in the Minnesota courts is likely to result in the opening up of a new and thriving industry. A woman has just been awarded $6,000 damages for a coat of tar and feathers which was applied to her by a father and three sons.

They called at her home and sent in their cards at midnight. She R. S. V. P'd by inviting them into the parlor, but they preferred the air freshness of the outer atmosphere, and resorting to an able argumentum ad hominem prevailed upon her to join their own party. Then they astounded her with a moonlight menu, that began with lukewarm beer, and ended with tricaseed feathers. She objected to either the tar or the feathers, or both, and sued for damages other than those that had been done to her feelings and physique. A verdict for $6,000 in her favor followed. She may be said to have feathered her nest nicely in the operation.

The amplitude of the earnings in the case calls attention to it as a profitable branch of human effort that has hitherto been quite neglected. Six thousand dollars is good money for a single tarring and feathering. Many a person has got nothing out of the proceedings, except the fun of being the star feature of the frolic. But there must be pioneers in every field, and the Minnesota woman is blazing the way to a glorious future for all the tarred and feathered who may come after her. If she has any push she will not rest her career with this one coup; she will go on and get tarred and feathered some more at the old rate, if possible, till all over with ostrich plumes.

Others will see the big profits there are in the business, and soon probably it will be overruled like prize-fighting and politics. But this woman, who discovered the field, can make a big thing of it while the novelty lasts by booking herself for engagements through the country, wherever the feather crop is large and tar cheap. Perhaps tarring and feathering clubs will be formed and will offer her big purses for appearing before them. The great fear, however, is that after awhile hippodroming may detract from the dignity and repute all over with ostrich plumes.
